Forgotten Books, United States, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The South African Mining Journal, Vol. 26: With Which Is Incorporated the South African Mines, Commerce and Industries; Part 2; June 2, 1917 One obvious remedy is to make labourers pay for lost materials. Some mines do this, and with marked air and water hose it can be managed successfully; but generally it merely makes things worse, as the careful and honest miner has to pay for the neglect of the opposite type, who takes care to steal from others what he has destroyed. It is impossible to build a tool box underground that cannot be broken open. If a man takes the trouble to get together a good set of tools, he has to take them to the surface to keep them. The underground manager has to provide just twice as many such tools as are really necessary or find the work delayed all round. Timbermen, platelayers, pipe fitters, etc., unless provided with the very strongest storerooms, come down to find that all the tools necessary for a day s work have vanished. These troubles are more apparent...
