Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Story of Lincoln: Grade III In one corner of the room, beside the chimney, was a shelf, and here were kept the dishes. There were two or three dishes, a few plates and a tin cup or two. There was no floor in the cabin but the hard earth. The chairs were rough wooden blocks. Sometimes the mother would spread a bear-skin on the earth floor for the children to play upon.they made believe that sticks were soldiers, dolls, or whatever they wished, and had a very good time playing together. The children grew fast and were healthy and strong. By the time Abe was five years old, he could help a little with the work. He and Sarah had very few clothes. They did not wear shoes, and until Abe was almost a man he never had a pair of stockings. Abe wore trousers made of deer-skin, and a shirt and jacket of coarse cloth. When he was older he had a coon-skin cap of which he was very proud. The mother told the children stories from the Bible, and a few fairy stories that she knew. She taught them their letters and helped them learn to read. Many a winter evening, as they sat before the blazing fire, the father told them stories. He knew a great many good stories, and they loved to sit and listen to him. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
