Forgotten Books, United States, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Chaplain, Vol. 11: December 1954 All this is second mental nature with us, and to a degree that we seldom realize. The result is that in troubled and perplexing times like this we have all but forfeited that distinctive quality which religion should impart to man, a sense Of reposefulness, of central peace subsisting at the heart of endless agitation. Our religion is morally earnest, but it is strained and anxious. In our more re?ective moments we real ize that God cannot be held chargeable for the state of our world, save in so far as he has given man a genuine free will. Our wars and rumors of wars are our undoing. Thus there is abroad a widespread feeling that the cele bration of a festival like Christmas in times like this is little more than an ironical farce. The Bible never denies for a moment, even in the Gospels perhaps least of all in the Gospels - that it is man s religious duty to be an earnest seeker after God. But this idea is...
