Daniel Denison Whedon was born in Onondaga, in the State of New York, on the 20th day of March, 1808. His parents were Daniel Whedon and Clarissa Root. He was the youngest of a family of eight children, of whom only three, brothers, survived to adult years, and they reached old age. His name, Daniel, has belonged to five successive generations; Denison, from his paternal grandfather, to four; and the combined Daniel Denison has been bestowed upon a son and two grandsons. Respecting his ancestry he does not seem to have been sufficiently anxious to leail to much expenditure of time and zeal in tracing it. My family, he once said in a college oration, is as old as the Duke of Buckingham s, only I have lost my pedigree. It is known, however, that it was of good English stock, and is traceable in this country through more than two centuries. In 1657 Thomas Whedon came from England to New Haven, in the State of Connecticut, and, about two years later, removed to the neighboring town of Branford, where he became one of the founders of the Congregational Church in that place. From him the line of descent runs through six generations, in Branford, Westfield, Mass., Hebron, and Onondaga, N. Y., to the subject of this sketch. They were mostly farmers, some of them achieving local distinction and wealth; one, Denison Whedon, proving his patriotism by entering the army in...
