Excerpt from The Journal of Experimental Medicine, Vol. 34: December 1, 1921; Studies on the Treatment of Human Trypanosomiasis With Tryparsamide (the Sodium Salt of N-Phenylglycineamide-P-Arsonic Acid) The work in experimental chemotherapy of certain protozoan infections which has been in progress at the Rockefeller Institute for several years, has resulted in the development of a large series of compounds, of which one at least was found to possess a high degree of therapeutic activity in experimental trypanosomiasis. This substance, N-phenylglycineamide-p-arsonic acid, was first made in 1915 by Dr. Walter A. Jacobs and Dr. Michael Heidelberger (1 and 2) and studied biologically in collaboration with Dr. Wade H. Brown under its serial number of A 63; its sodium salt has recently been named Tryparsamide. The biological investigations included toxicologic experiments (3) in which it was shown that the reaction of different species of laboratory animals to the drug was of a favorable character. The substance lends itself well to almost any method of administration and can be given to animals in large doses. Moreover, toxic effects were confined to doses relatively close to the minimum lethal dose and the recovery of animals from sublethal intoxication was remarkably rapid and complete, thus making possible the repetition of large doses at comparatively short intervals of time. The therapeutic activity of the drug in experimental trypanosomiasis (4) was particularly evidenced by the relative speed and sharpness of action in the acute blood infections of mice and rats and by the potency and duration of action in the subacute and chronic tissue infections of guinea pigs and rabbits. The accomplishment of a permanent cure was obtained in the experimental infections produced by five strains of pathogenic...
