Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. From the beginning of the first chapter: WE ARE INTRODUCED TO MADI. YOU want me to tell you a story, Little Sister? Well, come into the garden, and I will try to tell you all about the different little girls I have met during my travels in far-away lands. You must sit very quiet, as I want to finish this picture of Daddy s Garden before all the spring flowers have fallen and withered away. I will first tell you the story of the Little Burma Girl, for she is the one I liked best. She lives in such a sweet, green, sunny land, where the people are happy and contented, and kind to animals. Yes; another day I will show my pictures that I painted while I was living in Burma. Perhaps I will write it all down and put it into a book, and put the pictures in the book also, and give it to you on your birthday. Yes; I knew little Madi, and when first I met her she was trying to drive a naughty dog away from the bowl of rice that her mother had just cooked for the family dinner. She was only a tiny little girl of three years old; and she ran at the dog, calling out, He, Kwe! He, Kwe! In Burma a dog is called Kwe. She waved her arms about to frighten the dog; but she never hit it, or threw stones at it, for she was, like all the little Burma girls, very gentle and kind. Then some years later I met little Madi again, and saw her dance in the dances by the Ananda Pagoda. A...
